

Blog changes

Written by
Saturday, 15 August 2009 01:40

After nearly a year and a half in Cambodia, the time has come for me to return to the U.S. While I certainly plan to come back to Cambodia in the future, it most likely won't be before the trial of Comrade Duch has wrapped up. Luckily, a talented journalist at the Post has offered to help me maintain the blog.

Robbie Corey-Boulet received an M.S. in journalism from Columbia University and wrote for publications in India and Seattle before coming to the Phnom Penh Post. A strange coincidence : We actually worked together at The Brown Daily Herald in college, where he served as Editor-in-Chief several years after I held the same position.

While I will continue to blog about tribunal issues from afar, there is no replacement for having someone on the ground who can tell us what is really happening. I'm sure Robbie will do a wonderful job and am so happy he has signed on for this project!